Summary of changes in the materiality ratings from the July 2024 version to September 2025

Economic activity (ISIC Group or Class)	Pressure or Ecosystem service	Previous materiality rating (July 2024)	New materiality rating (September 2025)	Reason for change
Data processing, hosting and related activities; web portals	Area of seabed use	VL	L	Reviewed component scores. These are now Medium for total financial input and Low magnitude, resulting in materiality rating Low.
Solar energy	Emissions of toxic pollutants to water and soil	L	VL	Reviewed magnitude component score, which is now Low. This results in final materiality rating of Very Low.
Transmission and distribution of electricity	Water flow regulation	VL	L	Reviewed reliance and financial cost of flood supply, which are now both rated Moderate. This results in materiality rating of Low for water flow regulation.

Summary of changes in the value chain links from the July 2024 version to September 2025

The downstream value chain links have been updated:

- The EXIOBASE final demand categories Final consumption expenditure by households, Gross fixed capital formation, Final consumption expenditure by non-profit organisations serving households (NPISH), Changes in inventories, Final consumption expenditure by government are now included in the downstream value chain links under the category Final consumption category.
- An error has been fixed in the calculation of the downstream value chain links to ensure that the links displayed in the file are reflective of the top five value chain links from the Input-Output model (based on total output data). 80% of the direct operations activities listed in the downstream file have 10 or fewer links. 20% of the direct operations activities are linked to between 11 and 35 Tier 1 activities. This results primarily from: 1) the fact that some economic activities are supplying to a large number of other activities; and 2) the need to convert from EXIOBASE sector classification into ISIC.

Summary of changes to the format of the CSV zip file

- In the July 2024 csv files, rows 1 and 2 of the following files contained the headers “Economic activity” and “Pressures” or “Ecosystem services dependencies”. The September 2025 csv files have the two header rows removed for the following files: 03. Dependency links, 05. Pressure links, 06. Dependency mat ratings, 07. Pressure mat ratings.
